Emergency Motion for Sentence Reduction Under 3582 (C)(1)(A) Compassionate Release

COMES NOW, movant Reginald Statom, pro se without the aid of counsel seeking a sentence reduction under compassionate release or in the alternative, the CARES Act of 2020.

Specifically, the COVID-19 infection has infiltrated several federal prisons throughout the United States. Once inside the prisons the infections have led to coronavirus at an uncontrollable rate.

Movant is in the category of persons that the centers for disease control considers high risk for serious complications or even death if he becomes infected with the disease. Particularly, movant has respiratory problems. He has Asmanex Twisthaler, Albuterol Inhaler and Doxazosin for enlarged prostate. In addition, movant suffers from asthma.

Movant has served (65) percent of the term to which he was sentenced (205 months) and (71) percent of his good conduct time release (188 months).

Furthermore, movant is a low-level drug offender with no history of violence. Movant has a plan for lodging, income and medical care upon release. It is no stretch to call the prison environment extraordinary and compelling. If movant remains in this environment there is a high likelihood of his contracting COVID-19 from which he would not be expected to recover because movant cannot adequately practice self-care or social distancing and hygiene to minimize his risk of exposure, release to become confinement is a compassionate alternative to continued institutional incarceration.

Movant asserts that the BOP has not implemented constitutionally adequate measures to protect him from the serious threat posed by this unparalleled pandemic. The eight (8th) amendment grants movant the right to be protected from this disease
